The following poem was composed by Ann Cioffi for her dear friend, Michelle. I know Michelle would have greatly appreciated these moving words:It was the day, heaven opened its doorsIt was the day, that changed you forevermore It was the day, that your dreams were fleetingIt was the day, that her heart stopped beatingAs her spirit, flew to the other sideShe was greeted by angels, with arms open wide.She knows you love her, she can tell by your tearsBut she's ok now, so there's nothing to fearAnd she loved you too, oh for all that you areAnd to see her, just look to the brightest starShe'll be laughing, in your dreamsBetween the moonlight, and the sun's golden beams

Michelle – When the time comes for my life to pass, I hope that I am remembered as fondly and as by as many people. Michelle defined the words of a 'beautiful person' so perfectly. She was indeed that bright ray of sunshine on a dull day, always had a smile and loved to laugh (most heartily!).... And yes, I will miss the Irish tea bags! ~ Rest in peace my friend!

My dearest friend. No words can express the loss felt from your passing. Though we're many miles apart and the years have flown by, time has stood still for our friendship. I have a hole left in my heart that is, no doubt, shared by the countless others whose lives you touched. It is undeniable that anyone who met you could sense your sincerity and instantly knew they were in the presence of someone truly special. You were blessed by God and I know now you're home.

Your Mother was one of the greatest Mothers in the world. She loved you boys with all her heart and she was so proud of you all. When she talked about you all, you could see the love right in her eyes. I thank God for letting her raise you all to be Men and letting her see the products of her Love grow up and exceed all her dreams of what you would become. Be Proud, Be in Awe. God surely blessed you boys by enabling you to call her "Mom".The sorrow will never pass, but the Memories will warm your heart and soul.Joanne Greenage (Bus 63)

It was an blessing to visit with Michelle last weekend at Renee's house. We hadn't seen Michelle in years but her hugs and smiles were as if no time had passed! She beamed as she shared stories of her family. She was such a proud mom and loving sister. I know she touched many, many lives. I am honored to have known her!
