Michele Andrews posted:

I met Wilson in 1993. He was a tall, strong man with beautiful eyes that allowed me to connect right to his heart. When he smiled his eyes beamed. I can see why Edna snatched him up. He was a great care taker of the estate he oversaw for many many years and took pride in his work. I remember fishing with Wilson and how calm those moments were; peaceful memories with his family all together. He loved Elizabeth AKA Bears, his granddaughter, as did the whole Andrews family. Wilson was equally kind to my oldest two children, Amanda and Neal, which they appreciated and will remember his kindness. Wilson came from a simple life and knew how to value the beauty of nature; the water, animals and land. He worked with his hands and had more knowledge than most men today regarding worth ethics and the importance of working hard to earn a living. He loved having a work boat in which he could crab, oyster and fish. And of course he captained the boat he oversaw to take others out on the Chesapeake Bay. Although he never owned a place on the water surrounded by green landscape with deer and rabbits running freely, he worked to keep the property he enjoyed with Edna as beautiful as his own. Today, my hope is that Wilson and Edna are hand in hand enjoying their very own kingdom together forever. John 3:16. For God so loved the world that He gave His only son, that whoever believes in Him will not perish but have everlasting life. You will be missed Wilson.
